Introduction

Whether or not you have an interest in conspiracy theories, they are alive and flourishing on the Internet.

Here I have taken the ten longest-lived conspiracy theories as listed by Time magazine. I have given a brief introduction to a theory and then summarised the material from a web site that promotes that particular conspiracy theory.

Many of the sites promoting conspiracy theories are very professional, which shows that many people are willing to spend a lot of time, effort and money to tell the world about their beliefs, to promote the various conspiracy theories and to try to attract the attention of other Internet users.

This book, by no means includes all the websites that refer to conspiracy theories that you might find. For one thing, there are too many of them. For another, they, like much else on the Internet, are constantly changing. Always, new sites are appearing and old ones disappearing into the lost lands of cyberspace. As information and ideas change the websites are changed to reflect what the owner considers to be the most up-to-date information which supports his/her view. Rarely do they add information which might count against their point-of-view. Just like the rest of the Internet, really.

In presenting the sites in this book I have not argued one way nor the other, neither for nor against the truth of conspiracy theories. This book is not a presentation of my opinion, nor the arguments for or against their existence. It is just a source book from which you might start if you wish to know more about conspiracy theories. It's up to you to make up your own mind.

Although, of course, I do have my own opinion on the existence of conspiracy theories, I have tried not to let that colour my choice of sites. My choice was largely random although I have tried to treat the sites fairly. I think that the ones I have chosen are fairly representative of what is available.

Of necessity, due to various copyright conditions, I had to rewrite the text from the web sites in my own words. For similar reasons I did not include photographs in my accounts. I tried my best to follow the owner's aims and present his/her message as it appeared on the web site. I have given you a link to the original so that you can check on me and also look at the photographs or other information on the site.

It's now up to you.

Are conspiracy theories really true?
Or not?

Read on, and make up your own mind.

Conspiracy theories seek to explain a situation or event as a conspiracy amongst some powerful group, often a government, who have arranged events to happen to their own advantage, and usually to cover up some other event or situation which they don't want the general public to know about. The explanations often contradict known facts or history.

Conspiracy theories are based on the belief that everything is organised by someone and nothing happens by accident, things aren't what they seem to be and there is always a hidden explanation, and that all events and situations are in some way connected to each other, according to political scientist Michael Barkun. Barkun adds that they are "a matter of faith rather than proof", and form a closed system that is not falsifiable so cannot be tested

Conspiracy theories are designed to offer explanations for a myriad of things, such as evil forces and power relationships. They are said to often be 'projections', that is, the person's wish to relate some important event with a cause that they find convincing and significant. They are also sometimes related to various mental disorders such as paranoia. They seem to be aimed at providing an explanation for some otherwise non-understandable or random event which is causing the proponent a feeling of insecurity.

According to The Oxford English Dictionary, conspiracy theory is "the theory that an event or phenomenon occurs as a result of a conspiracy between interested parties; spec. a belief that some covert but influential agency (typically political in motivation and oppressive in intent) is responsible for an unexplained event". The term was originally a neutral term and only took on its current disparaging sense in the 1960s. Its use goes back to the late 19th century.

Conspiracy theories include hidden government plots to control the population, unexplained murders and assassinations, the hiding of secret technology and scientific knowledge and explanations for a variety of political and historical events. Conspiracy theories rarely follow established research methods in researching and explaining these events, and always to go against the establish explanation. Note that conspiracy theories do not include conspiracies that can be explained with support and verification materials, such as documents and other evidence.

Conspiracy theories thrive on the internet, in social media, in blogs and in YouTube videos. Whether the internet has increased this sort of material is open to question, but the presence of unreliable sites has proliferated and there is a notable absence of high quality links to the material, as any search will quickly show.

Conspiracy theory serves the needs of many political and social groups around the world. The serve to blame certain groups of people for economic and social catastrophes, and predict that things will be much better once action is taken to remove them from positions of power. This form of conspiracy theory is not confined to any one time or place, but occurs everywhere and everywhen. The mass media is often blamed for the recent rise in the popularity and designs of conspiracy theories. And the problem is that so many people believe them to be true!

The John F Kennedy Assassination

What is known:

President John F Kennedy was assassinated on November 22 1963. He was hit by two bullets, one in the neck and the other in the head. The assassination occurred in Dealey Plaza, Dallas, Texas, while the President was passing through the plaza in an open-topped car with his wife while on a Presidential visit.

Lee Harvey Oswald was charged with the murder. A Presidential commission under Chief Justice Earl Warren found Oswald had acted alone without accomplices.

However, many members of the public disagree. A poll in 2003 found that 70% of Americans believed that Kennedy's assassination was part of a wider plot. The figures for the rest of the world are unknown.

It has been argued that the path of the bullets do not align with Oswald's location at a window on the 6th floor of the Texas School Book Depository. It has been suggested that there was a second gunman who fired from a grassy knoll adjacent to Dealey Plaza. Some people believe that the conspiracy goes even wider than that.

Questions that were asked:

Was President Kennedy killed by CIA agents disgruntled by the Bay of Pigs fiasco?

Was the assassination ordered by Vice President Lyndon Johnson, eager for the top post?

Did the criminal fraternity organise the assassination in revenge for Kennedy's brother's prosecution of organised crime gangsters?

Conspiracy Theories On The Web

The assassination of President John F Kennedy has been widely discussed and many people have become convinced that there is something being hidden, even if they are not sure what. The 2003 poll mentioned above found that only 32% believed that Oswald had acted alone.

The John F Kennedy Assassination

The John F Kennedy assassination is a controversial subject. Some people argue that President Kennedy was killed as the result of a conspiracy by some group. Other people insist that the assassination was the act of a lone gunman named Lee Harvey Oswald.

This article puts the case for believing that there was a conspiracy to kill President Kennedy.

Evidence that Oswald Was Not the Lone Assassin

Not all the shots were fired by Lee Harvey Oswald:

Oswald had no credible motive.

More than three shots were fired.

Shots were fired from more than one location.

The sixth-floor rifle was inaccurate and unreliable.

Oswald was not a good enough marksman.

Oswald was not on the sixth floor during the assassination.

Oswald did not fire a rifle on the day of the assassination.

Some of the evidence against Oswald was manufactured after the event.

Oswald was set up in advance.

The crime was not properly investigated.

Oswald Had No Motive to Kill President Kennedy

A large part of the Warren Report was devoted to the question of why Oswald killed President Kennedy. The Commission was unable to find a credible motive. Oswald did not dislike Kennedy. Witnesses recalled Oswald expressing complimentary remarks about JFK both as a person and as a politician. Oswald consistently denied killing Kennedy.

More Than Three Shots Were Fired

Oswald could not have fired more than three shots.

Conspiracy Theories On The Web

There must have been more than three bullets to do all the damage to the victims.

One bullet hit Tague. One bullet hit Kennedy in the head. another bullet caused all the other recorded wounds. This is proved by the medical evidence, photographic evidence and eye witness reports. Thus there must have been more than one gunman.

Witnesses claimed to have heard three shots.

Shots Came From More Than One Location

The medical and eye witness reports support the suggestion that bullets came from both the front and the rear of the motorcade.

There were many witnesses who reported at least one shot from the grassy knoll adjacent to the Plaza. They are supported by later acoustic evidence.

Photographic evidence shows that Kennedy's head was thrown backwards not forwards by the force of the bullet hitting him.

The Sixth-Floor Rifle Was Found To Be Unreliable

Both the FBI and the US Army examined the rifle found on the 6th floor of the Book Repository. They found that it was too inaccurate to have hit the target twice out of three attempts within six seconds.

Oswald Was Not a Good Enough Marksman

Tests by skilled marksmen found that it was not possible for Oswald to have done all that was supposed to have been done on the occasion. Oswald's marksmanship would have been inferior to theirs. His Marine Corp rating in 1959 was only one point above the required level. Oswald did not use a rifle between leaving the Marine Corp in 1959 and the time of the assassination.

Oswald Was Not on the Sixth Floor at the Right Time

A number of employees of the Book Depository saw Oswald on the second or third floors of the building at the time of the shooting. Spectators in Daley Plaza described a man at the sixth floor window. Only one of the descriptions fitted Oswald, and that witness failed to identify Oswald later that day at a face to face meeting.

Oswald Did Not Fire a Rifle That Morning

Tests showed that Oswald had not fired a rifle that morning. Although he may have fired a pistol, there was no reason to suspect that he had fired a rifle. It was proven that the rifle would have left a residue on the firer's cheek, but Oswald had no such residue on his cheek.

Evidence Was Faked After the Event

It has been shown that some of the physical evidence used against Oswald was manufactured after the event. A paper bag "found" on the sixth floor was made by the Dallas police after the event, and a bullet later found on the stretcher carrying Governor Connally to hospital was fraudulent.

Oswald Was Set Up in Advance

An impersonator using Oswald's name made enquiries at Russian and Cuban embassies in Mexico City in mid-1963. The man asked about acquiring a visa to visit Cuba and spoke to a Soviet official believed to be a KGB assassin. This man was not Oswald. This impersonation proves that there was a conspiracy: Either Oswald was set up to take the blame for the assassination of the President or that he had an accomplice.

The meeting with the Soviet official shows that either the Russians were involved or that both Oswald and the Russians were being set up to take the blame.

That this impersonation actually took place is acknowledged by the FBI and Vice-President Johnson. The impersonation make it impossible for the conspiracy to be plausibly denied.

The Crime Was Not Investigated Properly

Based on the impersonation in Mexico City, the Warren Commission was set up with the purpose of finding enough evidence to convince the public that Oswald was the assassin. The Commission did not actively investigate the issue, it merely considered evidence provided by various government agencies, such as the FBI. There is also evidence that the Commission manipulated evidence by asking witnesses leading questions, ignoring some witnesses, making some documents secret, and making decisions contrary to the evidence. It should be noted, that some of the members of the Commission did not agree with its final decision.

This site does mention some of the contrary evidence but doesn't make much of it.

The 9/11 Terrorist Attack

What is known:

Not since the John F Kennedy assassination has there been an event which has given rise to quite as many alternative explanations. The many videos and photographs of the two planes striking the World Trade Centre Towers on September 11th, causing an explosion causing the towers to collapse, are famous around the world, and there has been so much documentation and discussion of the events that misinformation and rumour are rife.

Many people believe that the Commission which looked into the affair "concealed or refused to investigate critical evidence that contradicts their official explanation of the September 11th attacks."

Questions that were asked:

Why had the Air Force failed to intercept the hijacked airliners?

Had the government ordered the Air Force not to intervene, so that the attack could be blamed on Islamic terrorists?

In 2005 a magazine published the results of a very large scale investigation into events similar to the 9/11 attack and found that the North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD), does not have fighter planes ready to intercept aircraft that have gone off their planned routes, as happens in many other countries.

Although the investigation showed that there was no evidence that the government had participated in planning the attacks, that didn't, and never has, stopped speculation from conspiracy theorists.

Collective Evolution

24 Hard Facts About 9/11 That Cannot Be Debunked

The 9/11 attack has stirred up interest and discussion world wide. The debate is over how it could happen, and why it did at that particular time and place. Many people, particularly Americans, don't believe the official account of the events, the reasons, and who is to blame. World wide the doubters are even more represented, and said to reach over 90% of the population in some countries.

Here is a list of 24 facts that cannot be debunked.

1. Investigators found Nano Thermite in the dust and debris at the sight of the collapsed towers. There is no reason given as to why it was found there, where it shouldn't have been. This fact was reported and discussed by a number of scientists in the Bentham Open Chemical Physics Journal.

2. Thousands of engineers and architects have urged a proper, independent investigation of the 9/11 incident, because that do not agree with the official findings.

3. The total collapse of the towers, in free fall, in only 6.5 seconds. It has been stated by experts that steel framed high rise buildings never do totally collapse due to structural damage caused by fires. Thus, the World Tower Centre was not hit by a plane.

4. It is reported that NORA (the North American Defence Network) was on "Stand Down Order" at the time of the attack. They were apparently playing war games at the time. Being on "Stand Down Orders" meant that they were not watching what was going on in US airspace.

5. Six of the ten Commissioners who investigated the attack believe that the 9/11 Commission Report "Set up to fail." They believe that the outcome was pre-determined as part of a conspiracy.

6. The FBI confiscated a large number of video tapes from the Pentagon, which was attacked at the same time as The World Trade Centre Towers. When these tapes were finally revealed they had obviously been tampered with. One doesn't show what it is supposed to show and another has missing frames.

7. Osama Bin Laden was NOT wanted for the 9/11 attack by the FBI. They reported that "No hard evidence connecting Bin Laden to 9/11." Osama Bin Laden was once a CIA "asset" codenamed "Tim Osman", who was CIA trained and funded as part of the Al Qaeda/Taliban formation

8. Hundreds of firefighters and witnesses reported bombs and explosions in various parts of the buildings, but were ignored by the 9/11 Commission. Over 500 witnesses were barred from giving evidence to the Commission.

9. Many firefighters and witnesses reported molten metal being present at the site. This was ignored by the Commission. A witness said it was "Like you're in a foundry". Three weeks after the attack many fires were still burning and molten steel was still being found running in the debris.

10. A group of "5 Dancing Israeli's" were near the site in what has been called "a Mossad Truck Bomb" on the day of the attack claimed that "We were there to document the event." How did they know beforehand that the attack was going to occur?

11. On the day before the attack it was reported that $2.3 trillion was missing from the Pentagon.

12. Over 200 senior military, intelligence service, law enforcement and government officials voiced doubts about the official account of the attack.

134. The towers were built strong enough to withstand being hit by a Boeing jet. The structural engineer responsible for the building said "I designed it for a 707 to hit it. It could probably sustain multiple impacts of jetliners". Another Structural Engineer said "As far as a plane knocking a building over, that would not happen."

14. The History of American False Flag Attacks suggests that another cause to rally the people behind the nation is needed. It seems that the 9/11 attack achieved that goal.

15. A correspondent on the BBC, Jane Standly, reported the collapse of WTC Building 7 some twenty minutes before it actually happened. Other radio and TV stations around the country and overseas also had early reports of the collapse.

16. Debris from "Flight 93" was spread over a very large area. Statements have been made that orders were given to shoot the plane down over Pennsylvania, but, for some reason, it didn't happen. Other commenters said there was nothing at the site that would definitely identify a plane as being present. One official even said "There was no plane."

17. Bush waited for well over a year before authorising the 9/11 Commission. It has been said that the Commission's Report was written in outline before the Commission had been started.

18. The 9/11 Commission was seriously underfunded. It was given only $15 million to investigate the whole attack. Compared to other Commission investigations of less important events this was trivial.

19. It is reported that Bush watched the first plane crash into the towers. He was informed of the second impact some time later.

20. The PATRIOT ACT was written before 9/11, and signed into law on October 26th, 2001.

21. The director of Stratasec, which provides security for the World Trade Centre, Dulles International Airport and United Airlines, was Martin Bush. The security of all three organisations were breached in the 9/11 attack. Other security organisers and providers were also involved.

22. John O'Niel, a former FBI agent responsible for investigating Al Qaeda/Bin Laden matters, now working for Kroll Corporation, was transferred to the head security role at the towers just before the attack. He died in the collapse of the towers. Was he killed deliberately?

23. There seems to have been considerable insider trading on the stock exchange. Obviously, someone had insider foreknowledge. The insiders were never identified but are believed to have made millions of dollars from the event.

24. According to the BBC, at least seven of the supposed 19 hijackers are still alive. There is no video evidence of the highjackers boarding the planes as passengers. The pilots of the planes never used their emergency alert squawkers to signal a hijacking.

Area 51 and the Aliens

Who gave us Stealth Fighters and Kevlar and other such fantastic things?

Aliens, of course.

According to conspiracy theorists, the United States Air Force has the remains of an alien spacecraft stored at one of its bases, Area 51, near Las Vegas. At the base, it is said that government scientists are reverse engineering the highly advanced technology belonging to the aliens.

This belief is based on a variety of supposed UFO sightings in the area.

A retired Army colonel says he was given access to materials from an extraterrestrial spacecraft which crashed near Roswell in New Mexico. Some people believe that the government is also trying to develop time travel at Area 51.

At the nearby Nellis Air Force Base the government has developed advanced weapons systems and aircraft, including the Stealth bombers.

The US government's official statement that details of what is happening at Area 51 are classified for national security, is, to many, just extra proof that the government is hiding aliens and/or their spacecraft.

Proof Of Aliens Life

10 Evidences That Prove The Area 51 Aliens Are Real

Probably the most mysterious and secret places in the United States of America, and possibly the world, is the site known as Area 51, a US Air Force base near Las Vegas in Nevada. It is claimed by many people that Area 5 has a hidden, underground research facility where alien spacecraft and technology are reverse engineered to provide advanced technology for the US space programme. The wreckage from the widely reported Roswell UFO crash is also believed to be at Area 51, where it is also being reverse engineered. These claims have always been strongly denied by the US military and the United States government, but there is a lot of evidence that suggests that there is in fact a strong link between aliens and Area 51

Unearthly happenings

1. Area 51 is in the middle of the Nevada desert. Local residents have often reported strange lights hovering and moving around above and around the site of Area 51. Witnesses claim that the lights do not appear to be from Air Force aircraft such as fighter planes or other earthly sources.

2. It is officially denied, but there are radar records of objects flying at supersonic speeds around the area. Conspiracy theorists have pointed out that Air Force planes are not permitted to fly at such speeds over populated areas.

3. There is video which is concrete evidence that an alien has been autopsied at Area 51. This proves the strong connection between Area 51 and aliens. It is believed that the corpse of the alien was found at the location of the alien vehicle crash at Roswell in New Mexico.

4. The debris from the Roswell crash site was transported to Area 51 so that the government could study and reverse engineer the technology of the alien craft to use for military and space purposes.

Testimonies of ex-employees

5. An aerospace engineer, Boyd Bushman, who worked at Area 51 for a long time, has publically shown photographs of humanoid beings who do not belong on the Earth. Bushman confirmed in an interview that people working at Area 51 are a composite of humans and aliens as was expected by believers.

6. Physicist Bob Lazar worked on reverse engineering of alien aircraft while working at Area 51. These craft were captured and taken to the underground facility at Area 51. In revealing this information had to break his oath of secrecy regarding Area 51 and the strange goings-on that prove that there is a direct connection between Area 51 and aliens.

Video footage from Area 51

7. An aviation engineer who worked at Area 51 for nearly twenty years is shown in an interview on a video claiming that there were four alien beings stationed at Area 51 who are working alongside humans. They are involved with test flying aircraft of strange looking, futuristic, designs.

8. In mid-2014, a tourist known only as Sandra, reported seeing and filming a real UFO flying over Area 51. She is said to have filmed the aircraft from a bus window while travelling through the desert. She said that it was flying very fast and was gone almost as soon as she saw it. When she watched the film she realised that what she had thought to be a bird was in reality a UFO.

Cover-up attempts by the United States government

9. There is much conjecture from conspiracy theorists about the type of work carried out at Area 51. Although Area 51 has been an open secret for many decades, until 2003, the US government has never publically acknowledged the existence of Area 51 nor anything to do with it. Since there are so many different theories about what is happening at Area 51, it is easy to believe that something must going on there involving aliens and their technology being studied and similar things. That is why there are so many conspiracy theories, to explain the stories about what is suspected to be happening.

10. Area 51 is the most secure area in the world. It has the toughest security measures in the United States military system. It is said that trespassers are meant to be shot and killed without any warning beforehand. It is that high security that supports the idea that there are aliens there, hidden by the government for its own purposes, and that there is a cover up of very large extent.

This site has lots of interesting photos of flying saucers and dead aliens. Are they genuine or not? Obviously the site owner believes they are genuine, but who knows? Have a look and make up your own mind.

Paul Is Dead

Conspiracy theorists believe that Paul McCartney of Beatles fame is dead. He died in 1966, they say, and the other Beatles covered up his death. It is said that they replaced Paul with someone who looked identical to him, sang like him and even had the same type of personality. The name of the replacement was Billy Shears.

However, it is said, the guilty knowledge eventually got the other Beatles who started to put clues to Paul's death in their records.

There are numerous places where believers say that can detect hidden messages in The Beatles recordings. The whole of the album Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band is said to be thick with Paul-is-dead clues. The other Beatles always denied this.

The best known clues are those on the album cover for Abbey Road, where John, George and Ringo give up all pretense that Paul is still alive and cross the street as a funeral procession. John is all in white, like a clergyman, Ringo, the mourner, is in black, George is in jeans, like a gravedigger. Paul wore no shoes and walked out of step with the others.

If the conspiracy theorists are right, everything that is said to have happened to Paul McCartney since 1966 never happened to him. It all happened to someone else.

His knighthood.

Becoming a vegetarian.

Wings' songs and records.

Marriage to Linda and her unfortunate death from cancer in 1998.

His album Paul Is Live must have been false.

And so on.

Who is Paul McCartney now? Will the world ever know?

Paul McCartney's 1966 Death Conspiracy Goes Deeper Than We Thought

It appears that Ringo Starr has talked about the infamous conspiracy that Paul McCartney died in the 60's. He says that keeping the secret any longer is too much for him.

There are many people who believe that Paul McCartney left the Beatles in 1966. Some believe that he had died in a car crash. Is this confirmed by new evidence?

There is a lot of forensic evidence, anecdotal stories, scientific assessment of photographs, voice analysis, and circumstantial evidence that supports Ringo's alleged statement.

MI5, the British security organisation, was involved at some stage, when it was announced that:

"The British MI5 also announced an investigation to determine if an imposter could have indeed posed for 48 years as the Member of the Order of the British Empire, Sir James Paul McCartney, during official ceremonies involving Queen Elizabeth II."

But it appears that MI5 was involved in more than investigating the matter. It seems that they coordinated the whole affair. They were the people who were most able to make sure that the secret was kept for so long.

It is obvious to anyone living during the height of Beatles fame in the 1960s, why the Beatles agreed to go along with the conspiracy. Paul was the one who attracted most of the young, female fans. His death, or loss from the band, would have seriously affected the Beatles popularity amongst those young people all over the world.

This true story about the Beatles' tour of America shows just how traumatic such a shock would have been to the girls.

"During The BEATLES performance at Shea Stadium, which kicked off their 1965 US Tour, the massive contingent of New York City policemen who were assigned to crowd control reported “rivers of urine” which flowed from the girls and young women in attendance, they were in such genuinely altered states. They were so excited and beside themselves that they were literally ‘unconscious’ to controlling their bodily functions.”

It is clear, MI5, MI6, the British Monarchy and Parliament had to quickly decide to hide the death of Paul McCartney. The following quotation from Guitar World’s article titled “Did Paul McCartney Actually Die in 1966?” reveals more of the inside story.

The Replacement Of Paul McCartney — Why? And by Whom?

An article published by World News Daily Report web site contains a general account of the Paul McCartney story which is possible true. It contains many exact details and dates known to no-one else.

MI5 is the United Kingdom’s internal counter-intelligence and security organisation, and works alongside the Secret Intelligence Service, the Government Communications Headquarters and Defence Intelligence.

Many conspiracists are certain that Paul was no longer around after November 9th, 1966. The question they ask is why MI5 arranged for him to be removed. And, with whom did they replace him?

The theory goes that the British Intelligence Service believed that the Beatles had a lot of power and influence, and were determined to make us of it. The problem was that they knew that John Lennon would be difficult to deal with and that the deeply spiritual George Harrison would object. Paul’s death occurred during a 'black' (that is, assassination) operation run by MI5

It is asserted that knowledge of Paul's death led to the alleged drug overdose of their first manager, Brian Epstein in 1967, suspicion about George Harrison's death of lung cancer and a brain tumour, and John Lennon's assassination. There is suspicion that all these events were not what they seemed and may have been 'arranged'.

The BEATLES Lead The British Invasion Bands

Paul McCartney was the most famous singer of the Beatles, who led the British Invasion of the music world, and particularly of North America. Paul McCartney was special and had a tremendous influence over the music scene at that time.

What is not so well known is that the world of Rock and Roll had two sides, both trying to influence the situation.

Paul McCartney's role in this covert, long term operation. It is necessary to know the background to understand what happened to him: Why it was necessary to cover up his death and replace him with someone more amenable.

Sites like World News Daily Report are often used by people who want deniability, to release highly sensitive and secret information. While the story of Ringo's involvement might not be questionable, the background material in the article definitely fits with the most likely events.

RINGO STARR CLAIMS THE "REAL" PAUL MCCARTNEY DIED IN 1966 AND WAS REPLACED BY A LOOK-ALIKE.

Ringo Starr, previously drummer with the Beatles, this morning admitted, much to the surprise of everyone, that the rumours about Paul McCartney's alleged death are actually true.

Mr Starr explained to the Hollywood Inquirer's reporter that the 'real' Paul had died in a car crash in November 1966. He was replaced with a man named William Shears Campbell, who looked very much like Paul and had the same type of jovial personality. This was done to avoid producing too much grief in the public.

“When Paul died, we all panicked!” claims Ringo, obviously very emotional. “We didn’t know what to do, and Brian Epstein, our manager, suggested that we hire Billy Shears as a temporary solution. It was supposed to last only a week or two, but time went by and nobody seemed to notice, so we kept playing along. Billy turned out to be a pretty good musician and he was able to perform almost better than Paul. The only problem was that he couldn’t get along with John, at all.”

Mr. Starr says that the group did send out hidden messages through the years to prepare the population for the truth.

In particular, the entire Sgt. Pepper’s Lonely Hearts Club Band album has many Paul-is-dead clues.

“We felt guilty about the deception” added Ringo Starr. “We wanted to tell the world the truth, but we were afraid of the reactions it would provoke. We thought the whole planet was going to hate us for all the lies we had told, so we kept lying but sending subtle clues to relieve our consciences. When the first rumours finally began about the whole thing, we felt very nervous and started fighting a lot with each other. At some point, it was too much for John and he decided to leave the band.”

Ringo Starr said that he finally decided to tell the truth, because he was getting old and wanted the truth to be known before he died. He said that he was afraid the truth would never come out.

The rumours of Paul’s death had always been dismissed by the Beatles and their associates. In 1969, some US college students claimed to have found clues to Paul’s death in Beatles’ recordings, and everyone world-wide started looking for them. When an interview with Paul was published in Life magazine in November 1969, much of the fervour did die down.

Rod Pitcher

MI5 announced that they would investigate the matter of an imposter posing as a Member of the Order of the British Empire, Sir James McCartney and including an official meeting with Queen Elizabeth II.

It is possible that Paul's replacement was not aware of his role in the plot to control the Beatles and the music scene. He had a very tough job. Was he coerced by MI5? For whatever reason, he had to leave his real identity behind and live a lie for the good of all humankind.

There's a lot of interesting discussion on this site. Here I have only posted a sample. One has to wonder. . .

Secret Societies Control the World

The world is ruled by a small but very powerful, secretive group of people.

Just who these people are is impossible to find out, of course.

Is it Yale University's secret Skull and Bones Society, which has produced many United States' Presidents? Or is it some other secret group who occupy high places in government and financial organisations?

Perhaps it's the Illuminati, a secret group which originated in the 18th century? Their aim is said to be to stir up world wars so that they can justify forming a world government of a Satanic nature. Run by them, of course. If they are still around. No-one really knows.

Or the Freemasons? Despite their many charitable functions, they are secretly planning in Masonic temples all over the world, to take over the world. So it has been said.

Or perhaps it is someone we don't know about?

True Conspiracies

A Conspiracy by the International Bankers,

Jesuits, Illuminati and Other Groups

Deceptions Used in Their Drive to Form a One World Government

There have long been plots by secret groups to take over and rule the world. In the past they have failed, largely because they were too open and were found out. They have now taken to working in secrecy, through gaining control of businesses, money and political power. Now they are trying more subtle ways to gain control. Their method is to gradually convince people to accept their ideas. Most people are not aware that they are being manipulated and led to believe the wrong things. The conspirators are gradually convincing the world's people that a one world government would be a good thing. Where they can't convince people to believe that they are doing good for the world they use money and corruption to attain their ends. All they want is power, by any means.

These conspirators are mainly international bankers and the Illuminati. Between them, these people control the media, education and governments. They hide behind such organisations as The United Nations and other international organisations.

There is also a connection to the Jesuits and the Vatican who intend to make all religions one which will serve Satan.

Conspiracy Theories On The Web

They work by controlling the world's money through banking and governments. They encourage wasteful spending, borrowing and debts so that everyone becomes more and more indebted to them, and so under their control. These conspirators are privatising government assets to gain control of them. They also bribe and corrupt governments with their contributions and political donations.

By causing disruptions to production and loss of profits, trade unions are also serving the conspiracy. Union leaders are bribed to call strikes and cause breakdowns that will eventually send the business bankrupt.

We can see the effects of all these actions through increases globalisation, free trade, international problems that can only be solved by international groups and peace agreements that are false.

Their aim is to distract everyone from knowing the truth. Thus they can manipulate us to build up their own power over us.

One of the deceptions they use is to convince us that we need to spend more time earning more money, which we then spend on unnecessary things. In this way they drive people and businesses into bankruptcy and thus get them under their control, since they ultimately own all the money and debts. They convince people that working to make money is more important than helping each other freely. This causes many people to do work that isn't really necessary, by creating jobs that are unnecessary and corrupt. This corrupts the people doing the work.

By owning most of the shares in big businesses they can control manufacture and the workforce. Any staff who disobey or object are put out of work.

People are convinced to use credit cards instead of proper money, and to spend beyond their credit. This increases the bookwork and transactions and thus the control over people. This also discriminates against poor people.

Once the conspirators have destroyed businesses and bankrupt them they can easily take them over for their own purposes.

The eventually aim is that multi-national companies and banks will merge into one giant concern which will be able to control the whole world, all finance and business activity, and everyone in it. Through this conglomerate the conspirators will control the world and institute their one world government. In this way, everyone in the world will be under their control as they will have no other choice.

Competition and free trade only gives an advantage to these people. They say that we need competition to keep prices down, but it is obviously having the opposite effect. Corrupt businesses sell us products that are no good and we don't need. Good, worthwhile, products are being suppressed, thus there is less choice and poorer quality goods. Goods are made to wear out quickly so that they have to be replaced.

The conspirators also control all energy supplies and services.

It appears that international laws serve a useful purpose, but in reality all they do is give more power to the conspirators, who can then control international trade. Countries that refuse to comply are isolated from trade. Trade agreements are false and only aid the conspirators, providing no security for any country.

The conspirators cause wars and depressions to gain control. They are also responsible for many of the world's ills, such as genetic farming and drugs.

These conspirators already control many of the politicians in all countries. When these politicians first take their places in Parliament or Congress they are instructed how they will vote on certain issues, how they will issue statements that will help the conspirators to gain more power. The politicians have no choice but to obey. They wouldn't get elected without the help of the conspirators in the background, so they become willing aides to the conspirators while lining their own pockets. These politicians don't care about the people they rule. They are corrupt and are willing to serve the conspirators work towards one world government.

The evidence is that the one world government will be Satanic. Even though there is a link to the Jesuits and the Vatican, these people have become corrupted into aiding the formation of a one world government. Thus the conspirators have corrupted religion and those people in it to do their bidding.

These conspirators aim to control the world, its money, businesses and people for their own ends. They want complete power over the world and its people and will do anything to get it. No-one is safe from them, their corruption and their drive for power.

The Moon Landings Were Faked

It has been decades now since Neil Armstrong took “a giant leap for mankind” (and fluffed his lines). If it really did happen. Maybe he never actually left the Earth.

Conspiracy theorists say that the United States’ government was so avid to beat the Russians into space, that it faked the whole moon landing. The players acted out their parts in a secret film set, either somewhere in Hollywood, or more likely, in Area 51. Since only NASA has photographs and videos there is no chance of independent verification that it actually happened.

Critics say that the shots of Aldrin planting the flag on the moon are fakes. They say that the movement of the flag indicates a wind blowing, which, of course, can’t happen on the moon as it doesn’t have an atmosphere. NASA, of course, has an explanation. Aldrin was twisting the pole to make it stand upright. So they say.

Conspiracy Theorists point to Stanley Kubrick’ film 2001: A Space Odyssey as proof that the technology is available to fake a moon landing.

It is also said that three astronauts who died in a fire testing equipment to be used on the moon were murdered by US government agents to stop them revealing the truth.

Far fetched?

Listverse

10 Reasons the Moon Landings Is a Hoax

Were the moon landings a hoax perpetrated by the US government to be able to claim victory over the Russians? It seems so. Here's the evidence.

Since the film of the moon landing was shown on live television, many people have claimed to be able to see the American flag moving in a breeze as the astronauts planted it on the moon's surface. Photographs of the landing also are said to show rippling folds in the flag. Since there is no atmosphere on the moon there can be no wind to make the flag flutter.

NASA have said that the flag was stored in a thin tube for the journey to the moon and that the rippled effect was caused when it was unrolled just before it was planted in the ground. Other suggestions have been that the astronauts twisted the flag as they planted it in the ground, causing the support pole to twist and a reaction force such that the flag appeared to flutter in the film.

It has been argued that if NASA had really landed men on the moon there would be a blast crater marking where the landing module landed. No crater is visible on any film or photograph. It looks like the module was just placed there. The landing should also have thrown up a cloud of the very fine dust that covers the moon's surface. There is no evidence of a dust cloud nor any other disturbance of the surface dust.

There are a number of explanations offered as to why there was no dust cloud. These range from the low power of the module not raising the dust to the surface of the moon being solid rock and thus not showing a crater.

Since the only strong light source on the moon is the sun, so all shadows must lie along the same line and be parallel to each other. Film and photographs show shadows running in different directions. Therefore there must have been many different light sources. It has been claimed that this is evidence that there was more than one light source shining in different directions, as used in a film studio.

NASA has suggested that the odd shadow directions is a discrepancy caused by the uneven ground and hills on the moon, but this explanation does not hold. Hills would not cause such a big difference. In one of the photographs the shadows are at about 45 degrees to each other, which would not be possible.

On the way to the moon the spacecraft would have had to travel through the Van Allen radiation belt, which is always in the same location relative to the Earth. It has been claimed that the level of radiation in the belt would have been enough to kill the astronauts despite the shielding of their craft.

It has been counter argued by NASA that the short time the astronauts were within the areas of the belt would be insufficient to do them any harm. That is, they received only a very small dose of radiation and suffered no harm.

There is a strange reflection in the helmet of one of the astronauts that has raised some comment from conspiracy theorists. It appears that something is hanging above him on a wire or rope. There shouldn't be anything there. It has been suggested that it is one of the overhead lights used in the studio when filming the hoax landing.

What the object could be remains a mystery because the quality of the photograph is so low. The question remains as to why something was suspended in mid-air on the moon. The object does not appear in any other photographs so it is still a mystery as to what it could be.

It has been suggested that the astronaut's slow movements as though they are in low gravity. Some conspiracy theorists have suggested that the movements were shot in slow motion, and that if they are sped up the movements look as though they really took place in the Earth's gravity. It is claimed that the astronaut's high jumps were assisted by hidden wires and cables. The jumps would have been impossible in the Earth's gravity without this help it is said. It is further claimed that these wires and cables are visible on some photographs, although not very clearly.

There is one argument held to be important by many conspiracy theorists. That is the lack of stars in the backgrounds to the photographs and film. Since there is no atmosphere on the moon there can be no clouds to obscure the stars. Since there is no air to dim them they are much brighter than on Earth.

It is said that NASA would not be able to place lots of stars in their right places, so left them out and claimed that the low quality of the film makes them impossible to see.

But some of the photographs are of high enough quality that they should show the stars, but they don't. This argument seems to be lacking somewhat.

On one of the rocks photographed there appears to be a letter 'C'. It doesn't look natural, so it is suggested that the rock is a studio prop, with an identification letter, that happens to have been turned around the wrong way.

NASA has give excuses for this rock, none of which is satisfying.

Some of the photographs seem to have been doctored by superimposing images over each other. It is said that NASA overlaid the images over real photographs of the moon.

Although officially taken in different locations, two photographs appear to show the same background. Also, the landing module appears in one photograph but not another apparently taken at the same location. It appears that the same backdrop was used for both scenes.

NASA has argues that, due to the small size of the moon, the horizon can appear nearer than on Earth. However, that the two hills are far apart must be false.

It is claimed that Stanley Kubrick, maker of 2001: A Space Odyssey made the fake film for the US government after NASA realised how the technology could fake a moon landing. The evidence for this is controversial and not accepted by everyone.

Jesus and Mary Magdalene Married?

The Gospel according to Philip says that Jesus and Mary Magdalene might have been married. Philip's Gospel is from the Gnostic Gospels about which religious experts are in dispute.

According to Philip, Mary Magdalene was closer to Jesus than any of the disciples and he refers to her as his 'partner' or 'companion'.

Peter is said to have said to Mary "the Saviour loved you above all other women" and the scriptures mention that Jesus often kissed Mary. It is said to be a custom of the time, but did Jesus overdo it a bit?

The Da Vinci Code , a thriller that many people take as truth, made good use of this claim, and also mentions Opus Dei and the Knights Templar for good measure.

ancient-origins

Transcription of ancient manuscript suggests Jesus married Mary Magdalene and had two children

According to an ancient manuscript called “The Lost Gospel” reported to be 1500 years old, and now in the British Library, Jesus and Mary Magdalene were married and had two children.

This document was translated from Aramaic by Professor Barrie Wilson, Professor of Religious Studies. It is said to provide evidence for the story, which has long been the domain of conspiracy theorists.

Professor Wilson found the document in the British Museum. He said it is an ancient Syriac document dating from about the 6th century but was translated from a much earlier Greek document. He added that it has been known for about 200 years by biblical scholars who weren’t sure what to do with it.

The most controversial claim of the documents that Jesus married Mary Magdalene and that they had two children during his time in Nazareth.

This is not the first mention of a relationship between Jesus and Mary Magdalene, nor is it news to some theologians who have been arguing about it for centuries.

In 2012 an Egyptian manuscript fragment was found and translated into English. It explicitly stated that Jesus was married. The fragment is called The Gospel of Jesus’ Wife, dates from the 8th century and says that “Jesus said to them, my wife....”, and “she will be able to be my disciple”.

The Lost Gospel is still doubted by some people, until further investigation and information is available. When the full text can be read it will be useful to researchers.

Unfortunately, the story has been adopted by fiction writers. The book The Holy Blood and the Holy Grail, first told the story that Jesus had descendents who became French aristocrats and married into the Merovingian dynasty.

This story was taken up by Dan Brown in The Da Vinci Code. his book has publicised the conspiracy theory, but also muddied it so much that many people believe that the book is the truth.

The Church of England has said that The Lost Gospel is closer to fiction than fact, and is not an accurate historical document.

It is difficult to find much discussion of this conspiracy. Most that is written about it comes from Christian religious sources who are natural opposed to the story. The conspiracy theorists may have been frightened off. Perhaps it's just too hot a topic for anyone to build a web site around.

Anyway, if you want to have a look at this article here's the link . . .

Holocaust Revisionism

Holocaust revisionists refuse to believe that nearly 6 million Jews were killed by the Nazis, despite overwhelming evidence and even an apology from Germany.

Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad has called the Holocaust a “myth”.

Most revisionists don't deny that many Jews were imprisoned by the Nazis. Instead they argue that the death count is very highly exaggerated. They say that the gas chambers are only a rumour, or not able to kill.

“All those pictures of skinny people and bodies stacked like cordwood were actually of Czechs and Poles and Germans [who] died of typhus, which was rampant in the camps.”, according to Edgar J Steele, a revisionist attorney.

The evidence indicates otherwise.

INSTITUTE FOR HISTORICAL REVIEW

The false belief that millions of Jews were killed by the Germans is based on the finding of many corpses at the German prison camps of Dachau and Belsen and that there is no longer a large Jewish population in Poland. It is the generally accepted view of historians, but it is wrong.

During both world wars, Germany had a lot of trouble with typhus caused by lice brought in from the east. This explains why it was necessary to shave the hair and insist on showering and delousing in the concentration camps. The Germans used pesticides such as Zyklon to treat the living quarters. The typhus epidemics were the cause of the high death rate in the camps and for the existence of crematoria in all of them.

All these defences against the typhus stopped when Germany collapsed. Thus typhus ran rampant killing masses of prisoners. These prisoners were mainly political prisoners, ordinary criminals, homosexuals, conscientious objectors and Jews conscripted for labour. This is the cause of the horrible scenes which were publicised after the war ended. The deaths had nothing to do with any planned extermination nor other policy of the Nazis. The camps pictured were all in West Germany. They were not the so-called "extermination camps" which were all in Poland. The Polish camps were all evacuated and closed before being captured by the Soviets, who found no evidence of anything amiss.

"The Final Solution" described in German documents was a planned deportment and re-settlement of the Jews meant only that they were to be removed from Europe. Many Jews of various nationalities were moved to the east as part of the "Final Solution". The historians claim that the aim was extermination, which is simply not true.

There is no large population of Jew in Poland because they were all moved out. Because of all this movement of the Jews it is impossible to arrive at any statistics that are meaningful.

The Holocaust legend invites skepticism. No-one in Germany, at the time, acted as though they knew it was happening. It is said that the Jews did not resist as they did not know what was going to happen to them.

It is too much to believe that for over three years no one knew that the German railways were continually moving millions of Jews to be killed in the gas chambers though the densely populated centres of Europe. Nobody seems to have noticed all this activity except for the deluded Jewish leaders who were making claims that Jews were being exterminated.

Since communications between countries were still open, it is impossible that the Jews could not have been aware of the claim of extermination. Obviously, they didn't believe the claims.

All the so-called evidence was obtained after the war from "confessions" and other oral stories. Why were these trial necessary? There were never trials after previous wars, but these trials were necessary to argue the "reality" that millions of Jews were exterminated. Maybe the trials were legal and fair, but they weren't necessary, but it is on such questionable evidence that the myth of the Holocaust is based.

Revisionists have delved into the evidence from the trials and found it wanting.

One claim of the myth is that there was no means of exterminating millions of people and that other means had to be arranged. The Jews were alleged to have been gassed with Zyklon, a pesticide, and their corpses burned along with prisoners who died of other, ordinary, causes. But the ashes of all those millions have never been found. Any thoughtful person would be skeptical.

This is only a short account of a much longer article on the web site. I had to cut it short because it disturbed me so much. If you must read the full article follow the link below. I present it here only out of fairness that those who believe that the Holocaust is a myth have their say, and that you, the reader, can see what they are saying. It is typical of such “revisionist” sites.

I am not Jewish and have no connection with them nor any other religious group.

Most conspiracies give me something to think about -- just maybe, they might be right. They at least must be considered, if only to reject them. This site did not do that. It left me with a cynical disgust at what some people will do for their own ends, regardless of the effect on other people.

The CIA and AIDS

Since AIDS was first reported in 1981, there have been rumours that the disease was created by the CIA to kill off all homosexuals and African Americans.

South African President Thabo Mbeki once claimed that the disease did not arise in Africa, despite the evidence. He accused the United States' government of making the disease in secret military laboratories.

Nobel Peace Prize winner , Kenyan ecologist Wangari Maathai, also supported that theory.

Other conspiracists believe that the US government injected gay men with the virus in 1978, and that it got out of control.

Most scientists accept that the virus jumped from monkeys to humans in Africa sometime during the 1930s.

SourceWatch

AIDS conspiracies

Conspiracy theorists have often claimed that AIDS was actually created by scientists. The reason it was created was to kill some particular group of people in the population. Many of these conspiracy theories name the CIA or other government research facilities as being the source.

A certain Dr Graves claims that AIDS was a product of biological warfare research by US government scientists in the 20th century. He argues that AIDS was created and spread to kill off blacks, gays and other groups considered to be socially inferior and offensive to popular morals. Graves also believes that a pharmaceutical company has developed a cure for AIDS but is withholding it, probably by government orders.

A Dr Alan Cantwell is of the opinion that HIV is a genetically modified organism created by scientists working for the US government. He says that HIV was deliberately spread by experiments performed on gay men in the 1970s, in a number of US cities. These facts are suppressed by a government and media cover-up.

A number of other people have voiced the same opinions, although some think that the virus escaped accidentally, rather than being deliberately loosed. Most believe that there is still a conspiracy to cover up the origin of the HIV virus.

Other conspiracy theorist claim that the AIDS epidemic came about because the World Health Organization used contaminated vaccine in Africa and other place.

Robert Gallo who is famous for discovering HIV, when he said that there is an “interesting” link between the WHO vaccination program in Africa and the AIDS epidemic there.

Another conspiracy theorist, L.G.Horowitz, has proposed the theory that the IDS virus was developed by US government defence contractors for biological warfare purposes, particularly against Jews and blacks. He suggests that the US medical system is being part of a conspiracy to commit genocide.

Jakob Segal, at a university in East Germany, believes that HIV was created at a US military establishment in Maryland by genetically manipulating other viruses. e says that the new virus created in the 1970s had a trial run on prison inmates who volunteered to be guinea pigs in return for an early release. When these prisoners were released they took the virus with them and spread it through the community, particularly the gay community.

Many of the theories about the origins of AIDS are anti-Semitic. Some US blacks believe that HIV was invented by the Jews who want to destroy the black races. These theories have been propagated adherents of Islam and the Black Panther Party, as well as by a number of independents. One conspiracy theorist, Steve Cokely, has insisted that Jewish doctors have injected new born black babies with HIV.

Some conspiracy theorists disagree with above and claim that AIDS was created by the Communists to weaken the Western countries. They suggest that the above conspiracy theories were spread through the population by KGB agents to discredit the people's own government and scientists.

However, the US government has a history of conducting terrible experiments on its own people, without their permission, knowledge or consent. In the mid-19th century, it is known that black men with syphilis were deliberately not given treatment so that the progress of the disease could be studied. The CIA also conducted secret experiments on unwitting humans. The records for these experiments were destroyed by the CIA, so it is unknown exactly what was done to the subjects. It is known, though, that the experiments included a variety of conditions which could be used for brainwashing and mind control. The US Army has also admitted some experiments in the same direction.

It is known that the US military is interested in the development of biological weapons that can target one particular social group. It was stated by a reputable source in 2000 that "advanced forms of biological warfare that can "target" specific genotypes may transform biological warfare from the realm of terror to a politically useful tool."

There was much, much more on this site than I have summarised here, with lots of people named for their theories or sources and lots of other theories and conspiracies named.

The Reptilian Elite

There are amongst us a race of reptilian extraterrestrials whose one aim is to enslave humanity. So some people believe.

These reptiles can change their appearance to look human. They have replaced our leaders, chief executives, and even singers and actors. They are also responsible for a string of terrorist attacks.

It has been said that these reptiles have controlled humanity since ancient times, and are behind such secret societies as the Freemasons. They have replaced all the world's leaders in all countries.

It has even been suggested that they have replaced the British Royal Family.

They are amongst us. Now!

PileRats

Reptilian Overlords

Amongst us there is a race of blood-drinking, flesh-eating, shape-shifting extraterrestrial reptilian humanoids. Their only aim is to enslave the human race.

They occupy all the high offices in government and business. They are everywhere. They are responsible for all the wars, the Holocaust and terrorist attacks.

They are the Reptilians who have been controlling human affairs, lives and progress since ancient times.

This is the claim of David Icke, a top conspiracy theorist who has written a book about it telling the story from its beginnings in the ancient world.

The Reptilians come from the far star Alpha Draconis in the constellation of Draco. The Reptilians feel very little emotion, but are very logical and have a very structured society. They are the source of such secret societies as the Illuminati and the Freemasons. Disguised as humans they are everywhere there is power and control. Most of the Reptilians are able to change their appearance to suit their positions, but there are some who don't need to, depending where they operate. They have very little individuality or freedom since their society is very rigid and is strictly controlled from above by their masters.

Reptilian children are raised from birth to fulfil their role in society. Any who resist are eliminated. An impressive number of world leaders from the pharaohs of ancient Egypt to the modern day world who are, in reality, Reptilians in disguise, including 43 US Presidents, British and Canadian Prime Ministers and includes the Queen Mother, who is "seriously Reptilian".

A number of organisations that were and are all controlled and run by the Reptilians, including the Illuminati, CIA, science, religion, and the Internet!

The Reptilians have cross-bred with humans, for political reasons. Adam was probably the first of these cross-breeds.

These cross-breeds have a very powerful stare that is hypnotic, and they can shape-shift due to their hybrid genetics. For this they require a lot of energy which they get from drinking human blood. The Aryans were one of the cross-bred races, which is why they are cold-blooded, control freaks who are obsessed with rituals.

Some of the Reptilians come from another dimension. The universe is made up of an infinite number of 'frequencies' or dimensions and they are able to travel between them. Those Reptilians from other dimensions are completely under the control of the higher ones. When Satanists perform their rituals they are, in fact, summoning these Reptilians from their home dimension.

The Reptilians control all religions, particularly Christianity, Islam and Judaism, which are designed to break the human race into fragments too small to do them any harm. They create divisions in society between social, ethnic and sexual groups for the same purpose. By causing terrorist attacks such as 9/11 they give themselves an excuse to respond strongly and punish humans.

By creating 'problems' in society they are able to force humans to do things that they don't want to do, by offering to solve the problem that they themselves created.

Of all the conspiracy theories, this one, is to me, the most far fetched. So far fetched that I have doubts on its reality. It has been said that it was deliberately created to sell the author's book on the subject. There is a lot more on the site about it and its creator David Icke.

See what you think. Follow the link.

The Greatest Conspiracy of All Time

Now we come to what I consider to be the greatest conspiracy of all time. It has long been a part of the life of all humans. No-one is immune to its influence.

This conspiracy was with us when the first shaman rattled his bones to bring good luck in the hunt. It is still with us today when the priest calls down the blessings of his god onto the congregation.

Like all conspiracies, its one aim is to build and maintain power and control over people.

The greatest conspiracy of all time is Religion.

Each branch of religion, each denomination, each sect, has its own conspiracy to control its followers. Although there are differences in style and detail, they are all essentially the same.

There is one question I have that I am unable to answer. I can't even hazard a guess, because there is no data upon which to base any conjecture.

Are all those different conspiracies entirely separate in themselves, or are they all part of an overall conspiracy that controls all religion?

Due to fact that they vary so much, I suspect that there is no overall conspiracy which binds them all together. The conflict that would occur due to their differences seems to be too much for them to be able to work together.

Perhaps that is a good thing.

In the following pages I offer two opposing views of religion as a conspiracy, for and against, taken from different web sites. You know where I stand. You can make up your own mind.

The following is taken from the web site
Patheos

In religion we have a “program” that hijacks the normal functioning of our brains.

The “program” goes something like this:

1. Have children.
2. Install the “program” into the children.
3. The “program” then tells the children to go to step 1.

This procedure is highly visible with parents who take their children to church, Sunday school, or religious instruction classes every Sunday. The church/Sunday school is a place of religious programming. It’s exact nature will depend on the religion, but it functions exactly the same. The children are not really aware that they are being programmed, just as their parents weren’t when they were children. As they are being programmed, the program itself is telling them that everything is alright and things are progressing properly. The “program” protects itself and organises and controls its own installation.

It works just like a computer virus that propagates itself from computer to computer, taking control in the process.

Of course, it’s only a metaphorical virus that is passed on through the generations. Parents infect their children, who infect their children, who infect their children, . . . Instead of infect, read that as indoctrinate, because that's what it is, indoctrination.

Another fact counting against religion being a conspiracy is geography. Where you are born determines which beliefs your indoctrinated into, how it is done, and the details of what you learn. This shows that the “program” is passed down through the generations within a community and culture, rather than their being one overall “program” that every one shares. What you learn depends on where you are born and raised. A religious conspiracy involving all religion couldn't work, because of all these differences.

Perhaps there is not one overall religious conspiracy to control everyone, but that there are lots of different small conspiracies?

Psychological research supports this idea. It shows that religious memes can be propagated through a population without any overarching conspiracy to control it. The overall control of a conspiracy is not needed, it just happens as people raise their children to follow them in their own religion.

That's why religion is not a conspiracy. There is no shadowy group of people running world religion. It's difficult to imagine how Catholics, Muslims, Protestants, Fundamentalists and so on, could possible work together because of their different memes.

The way that I see it is that people can't help but propagate their religious beliefs. There is a psychological feedback loop that makes them.

The following is taken from the web site Forward Progressives

Organized religion is organised for ignorance, power and control.

Conspiracy Theories On The Web

Religion is a conspiracy devised by humans to propagate the personal views of one group of people while discrediting the beliefs of others. It is nothing more than one group of people telling others that their beliefs are wrong. They use people's beliefs to control and manipulate one group of people to oppose other groups who profess to a different faith.

That's what organised religion is all about – control over people.

Religion is an easy way to form a group of people with the same beliefs and manipulate them for the organiser's own goals.

Throughout history, religious leaders have supported one group of rulers who they say were chosen by God to rule, over others. Thus, for the ordinary people to object to the rulers would be punished as blasphemy. If anyone questioned their rule they would be punished by God, or damned to hell, or other punishment.

It's very clever, actually!

As long as the rulers had the support of the religious hierarchy the people were forced to accept them. That the rulers were bad, mad or just not nice, was not important as long as they pleased the heads of religion. To object was to risk the wrath of God.

Christianity was not the only religion to do this. They all did.

Religion has taken our wish to simply be decent people and have a few good rules to help us, and twisted our wish for its own ends. Religion becomes full of ambition, the wish for power and control, and greed. You will have noticed that all religions have plenty of money available to buy their way to what they want.

Much of the horror and warfare of the past, and present, is a product of religion. There have been many religious people who have believed that the best way to serve their God is to slaughter those who question the beliefs of the religion or have chosen to worship a different God. Thus they show the strength and truth of their faith.

Religion is nothing more than a way to control and manipulate people for the good of those in charge. It is a conspiracy of power and control over the mass of followers. The way it has been used over the centuries shows that to be true.

Conclusions

Are conspiracy theories true or not?

There is a lot of evidence that appears possibly true, and a lot that is admittedly false. In between there is boundless speculation, often based on no genuine evidence and of a questionable logic, and often by people unqualified to have an opinion on such technical matters. Speculation more often shows up the person's bias or wishful thinking than providing any genuinely useful information.

There are a lot of people who want to convince you that conspiracy theories are, or aren't, true, often for their own unstated agendas. One of the problems with the Internet is that anyone can start a blog about their favourite topic, whether it is true or imagined. There they can place whatever information they wish: There is no-one to decide what is true or false, except the blog owner, who can be as open minded or as openly biased as s/he wishes. On any blog, you only have the owner's word that the stories are true. Or not. As will be obvious to anyone who uses the Internet there is lots of false information and plenty of downright lies published as the truth. Of course, there is some true stuff. The hard part is identifying which is which.

Of course, correctly speaking, they are not 'theories'. A theory has been tested and found to be the best answer to a question, and it is then liable to be revised and improved by the same person or by other researchers. Conspiracy theories are rather 'untested hypotheses'. No one tests them to see if they work better than any other explanation, or even work at all. Because of the way they are formulated most (all?) of them are not falsifiable, which makes them very unscientific. But then the aim is not to test, or even to argue about, the theory but to spread it to people who will believe it to be true regardless of the evidence. The fact that the evidence is often 'cooked' to fit the theory, rather than the theory being modified to fit the evidence, as it should be, is merely an insignificant and ignored detail.

You will notice as you look on the Internet that many sites share the same stories and information. However, they should not be rejected on that basis. Often it is the way that the evidence is interpreted, explained or excused (or ignored) on a particular site that will make it interesting and worth looking at.

I hope that in some way this book has helped you. Not necessarily to make up your mind, but to tell you some of the conspiracy theories that can be found on the Internet. There's plenty more, so this book is just a starter, and is only a sample of what is available.

If you want to follow up any of the stories I covered in this book, go to the website via the provided link at the end of the chapter and see the original report I worked from. The sites often include links to other sources and sites of a similar nature.

Or you can Google "conspiracy theories" and see what you get.

Good hunting.

About the author

I live in Waramanga, a south-western suburb of Canberra, Australia's capital city.

I have about a dozen university degrees and diplomas in areas as far apart as anthropology, legal studies, psychology and including a PhD in Education.

I spend a lot of my time reading all sorts of things about all sorts of topics. I will read anything that is interesting.

I have a black cat named Dog to keep me company.
